If you have an automobile now and have no insurance on it you are flirting with loss.

If you are going to buy an automobile, the first thing to do is to insure it in a reliable company.

Automobile insurance is practical economy.

Very often the price you pay for a car is as much as some people pay for homes—and no man would think of owning a home without insuring it against fire.

You can insure your motor car against accidents, burglary and fire. The cost of insurance is so low that you cannot afford to be without it.

Automobile insurance is so cheap that you can figure it right into the overhead cost of running the car, and it won't make any appreciable increase in what you were going to spend anyhow.

On this page are the advertisements of a number of leading insurance men who will give you iron-clad, honest automobile insurance.

Pick out one of them. Call him up. Have him come over and tell you what automobile insurance means.

You owe it to yourself and your pocketbook.

Do it now!
